Ralph,

What additional details can you get on supposed project? The Research division crew is tight lipped about everything, although the unexplained material transfers to the planet all track back to their people. They've even got their own handlers to load and unload special cargo now.

I've only been here a few months, and I already know their's something rotten going on. What is Project Red Gene, and where have all these mysterious shipments been going? Whatever they are, they're not letting me into their labs at all. I'll have to use other channels.
